THURSDAY, : : MARCH 2, 1876.

A COMMITTEE of the Wine and Spirit Traders society of the United States is just now in Washington urging upon the attention of congress the passage of a bill to codify and simplify the internal revenue law relating to the tax on distilled spirits, and we learn from the New York Herald that a bill for that purpose will be introduced this week, one of the provisions of which will be to delocalize the revenue officials, reduce salaries from $5,960,000-what they amount to nowto $1,936,000, and the present tax to fifty cents a gallon. All officers are to be appointed by the President and confirmed by the senate. The President also has the power to appoint temporary storekeepers and gaugers without confirmstion when absolutely necessary according to limitations specified in bill, but such appoin ments to be valid only for one year. The commissioner assigns the officers to stations, but no officer is allowed to remain at the same station longer than six months, nor are two or more officers serving together allowed to be changed at the same time to the same station. Officers are allowed 2 per per cent. additional compensation for each year's faithful service without suspension for misconduct, for which elaborate provisions are made; all commissions to hold during the pleasure of the President. All bonds must be approved by United States judge and commissioner, and to hold w thout regard to local; ity, and are conditioned that officers shall obey superiors. The penalties against official ma feasance are increased, but the principal object of this part of the bill is to render the profession so honorable that no officer will steep to defraud, and, by detaching it from local political influences and extortions, the profession will be as free from corruption as the military or naval service. This portion of the law has been framed after the successful revenue systems of foreign countries with modifications to suit our form of government. Penalties agains! distillers are increased, as, for instance, the fine of three times the amount of the fraud instead of double the amount, as now. The abolition of stamps is purposed, because it is claimed that they have not prevented frauds, but rather facilita ed by their use the second time, as was recently the case in Chicago and St. Louis. Penalties against unlicensed distribution are heavy, and guilty collusion of dealers with manufacturers is very heavily punished by fine and imprisonment. The distinction between rectifiers and wholesale dealers is abolished. Who e-ale dealers' license is fixed at $200, with privilege of retailing without further payments, and retail licenses remain at $25, the pre-eat price. The committee, which, by the way, represents many of the most honorable whisky firms of the country, declare that it is to the interest of all leading houses to have the tax collected uniformly throughout the country, and that it is only by the adoption of such a system as is laid down in the bill-whose chief provisions we have synorsised-that the government can save itself from the disgrace of such tra: sactions as those which have cousigned so many officials and dealers to the penitentiary. They say that this bill embodies the experience of the most reputable dealers, citizens who feel that
